WYEFTEEP

This is a story of six young men of Alberta who, formerly unemployed, are now in winter quarters in the upper Highwood Valley within the Rocky Mountains forest reserve. It is likewise the story of the initiation of a Dominion — Alberta effort whereby young men are given the opportunity to secure forestry training and experience, in the course of which practical work of a useful nature will be taken in hand. While the cost of the project is equally shared by both governments, the actual operation is a provincial responsibility and for the purpose of direction, administration and supervision, the Alberta Forest Service is responsible. The project, known officially as Youth's Forestry Training Project, has already been renamed Wyefteep by the young men in training which was a natural outcome of the official use of the first letters of each word of the project title.

At the outset the proposed location of the camp was given careful consideration, for this had not only to meet the immediate requirements of the project but in view of a winter operation there were such other matters as road and telephone communication with the outside, shelter, fuel water, etc.

[To be continued next week]

To Train Ontario Youths in Forestry

Toronto (C.P.) — Instruction in timber scaling and cruising will be given at a camp established by the Dominion provincial youth training program at White Fish Lake, 40 miles west of Port Arthur. The camp will open shortly and close about March 31. It will accommodate 30 boys and will be under the direction of forestry officials at Port Arthur.

The youths attending the camp will work from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily on a combined course of lectures and practical work, and will be paid 50 cents daily with board while under training.

Recruited in Northern Ontario from the registered unemployed, the boys will be given sufficient instruction to get positions in the Northern Ontario timber industry as assistants to forestry experts, the announcement said.

Mr. Naylor was a Chinook visitor.

Miss Gladys Coates who is attending high school is staying in town for a few weeks while the snow is so heavy on the roads.

Ethel Hill is spending a few days in town.

Mr. Ray Robinson was appointed delegate to the U. F. A. convention at Edmonton.

Research Council Working for West

Ottawa (C.P.) — Western Canada problems are far from being over looked by the National Research Council, Major General A. G. L. McNaughton its president, said yesterday.

"A large part of the attention of the research council is being given to western problems, of necessity, because their problems are the most acute," he said, commenting on Winnipeg reports of proposed formation of a provincial research council to deal with agricultural problems.

From Winnipeg, J. M. Davison, secretary of the Industrial Development board, was quoted as suggesting the National Research Council had done valuable work, but was unduly influenced by eastern industry and political interests.

Legal Evidence

A man was charged with shooting a number of pigeons. Counsel for the defence tried to frighten the farmer.

"Now," he asked, "are you prepared to swear that this man shot your pigeons?"

"I didn't say he did shoot 'em, was the reply. "I said I suspected him of doing it."

"Ah! Now we're coming to it, what would you suspect this man?"

"Well, first I caught him on my land with a gun. Secondly, I heard a gun go off and saw some pigeons fall. Thirdly, I found four of my pigeons in his pocket — and I don't think those birds flew here and committed suicide.

Surgery of the Seas

Dr. Adam N. Beattie, surgeon of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, and his ship's nurse, Miss Margaret Grant Allan, who are shown here, performed two delicate operations during the ship's round trip to the Far East, via Honolulu, just completed in Vancouver. On the outward trip, between Hong Kong and Shanghai, the liner's huge turbines were stalled for nearly an hour while Dr. Beattie removed a ruptured duodenal ulcer from a Chinese passenger. On the homeward trip, between Hong Kong and Shanghai, the London, Ont. doctor's skill was again called into play when a Chinese saloon steward was stricken with acute appendicitis. Both patients are recovering well, the physician reported. Dr. Beattie, former house physician at Vancouver's St. Paul's hospital, and graduate of University of Western Ontario's medical school at London, Ont., stated that the Empress of Japan's splendidly equipped operating room made the operations little different in practice from any performed in large hospitals. His assistant, Miss Allan, is a graduate of St. Paul's hospital, Saskatoon. She has been in the Empress of Japan for the past three and a half years and previously was in the Empress of Russia. Dr. Beattie first went to sea in 1933 aboard the Canadian-Australasian liner "Niagara" out of Vancouver.

Treat Colds This PROVED Way

WHY experiment? Vicks VapoRub has been doubly proved for you . . . proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medicine of its kind; further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (See full details in each VapoRub package.)

Only Vicks give you such proof. VapoRub gives direct external relief—no risk of stomach upsets. Simply massage it on the throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub starts working direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors—released by the warmth of the body—are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion.

Repeat treatment at bedtime. For restless sleep comes VapoRub keeps right on working, hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

"Talking of talking turkey," said the earl, "though why turkey and not goose or grouse I can't think, I'm going to tell you how happy it makes me that you, a veritable Bingley, are going to have the castle. It's never been out of the family since it was built, except for a few times when enemies seized it, but we chucked them out in two ticks, you can depend upon that. Since, then, lunch, we established that you and I both come from the same litter, I know that I am leaving the castle in safe hands."

Ernest wrestled with this statement, and was thrown. Since the earl had had but a few ticks, it was unlikely that he was drunk; but, if sober, could he, strictly speaking, be called sane? For, apparently, if words meant anything, he was now offering to give the castle to Ernest. It seemed to Ernest that his most prudent policy was to say nothing, agree to everything and be on the alert to make a dash for the door if his lordship grew violent. So he bowed, and a bow can mean much, or nothing.

"A thousand pounds," remarked the earl, "is a lot of money."

"Indeed it is, sir," agreed Ernest, "nearly five thousand dollars."

"A lot to me, I mean to say," went on the earl. "But I daresay to a millionaire it is only a handful of pence."

"To some rich men I suppose it is," agreed Ernest.

"Just a spot on an old waistcoat."

"No doubt."

"I guess mouse-bite."

"Now look at this historic pile, as the guide book calls it," said the earl. "Look at this room, my study they call it though I never study anything here. Or elsewhere. In this very room, Mr. Bingley, a duke wrote love-letters which got him into bushes of trouble; a royalist plot was hatched here; a certain prince of the blood got no tight, sitting right where you are, with my grandfather, that they went out and jumped into the moat under the impression that they were frogs. And so it goes. Every cubic inch of this old place, from the top stone on the battlements to the dungeons is fruity with memories—"

Ernest nodded.

"I know," he said.

"Of course you do," said the earl. "Rosa tells me you certainly know your castles."

"Only this one," said Ernest.

"Well, this is the one we're talking about," said the earl. "May I pose a question?"

"Certainly, sir."

"All things considered, do you think a thousand pounds for a month's rent for the castle is too steep?"

"I must certainly do not," said Ernest.

The earl mopped his brow with a maroon silk handkerchief and expelled a sigh of relief.

"Then that's the price he said."

"That was what, Ernest wondered."

"Well, six up the details later, what?" the earl said.

Ernest nodded. The only details he could think of were returning Ralph to his native pastures and picking up his Sunday suit and nap underwear at the Hanger Gander.

"Mind if I rattle a skeleton?" he heard the earl inquire.

"Not at all," said Ernest.

"I feel," said the earl, "I should explain to you, as Bingley to Bingley, why we have to rent you the castle."

"Rent?" The word struck Ernest's ears like a wisp. It conveyed to him an alarming hint as to his true position. But his stunned mind could word had been dipped in acid and burned his throat.

"How come?" said the earl.

"I'm not what I seem to be," Ernest said.

"Nobody is," said the earl.

"I mean," said Ernest, in the same measured and tortured tones, "I have not agreed to rent the castle."

A stricken look aged the earl. He tried to smile, but couldn't. He tried to adopt a light tone, but failed.

"Oh, now, dear," he said, "I thought it was all understood."

"I am to blame," said Ernest. "I did not understand—"

There was a knock at the study door.

"May I come in?" said Lady Rosa's voice.

"Not now, dear," said the earl.

She came in anyhow.

"Well, everything rosy?" she began, then, seeing their faces, asked quickly, "Why, what's the matter?"

"Nothing," said the earl.

"Can't you arrange terms?"

"I seem to have flubbed my shot again," said the earl, brookly. "Mr. Bingley has changed his mind about taking the castle."

She turned toward Ernest.

"Have you?" she said.

Ernest looked back at her, saw her distressed eyes.

"Will you give me a moment to think?" he said, huskily.

"Certainly."

He walked to the window and stood looking out at the gray-and-yellow walls on which the autumn sun was falling.

"Shall we leave you alone?" he heard Rosa Bingley say.

"No. Please stay."

For a minute he stood there, thinking.

Suddenly he wheeled around and faced the Earl of Bingley, and his daughter.

"I've changed my mind again," he said, "Ill stay."

"You're quite sure you want to?" asked Rosa.

"I never wanted anything more in my life," said Ernest. He held out his hand to the earl.

"That's a bargain," said Ernest.

The earl took his hand.

"Oaksy Oaksy," he said.

"I'm glad you've decided to stay," Rosa said.

"We can buzz right out tonight, can't we, Rosa?" asked the earl.

"Yes."

"You don't have to go," said Ernest.

"I beg your pardon?"

"I mean," said Ernest, "I'd like to very much if you'd stay. There's just me, and all I'll be doing is studying the castle, and one room off in a tower somewhere will be all I'll need. Will you stay, sir?"

Passing Of The Shin-Plaster

Many Will Regret If This Handy Cure Is To Disappear

Whoever was responsible for the order to exterminate the Canadian shin-plaster could not have had little nephews and nieces to whom these tiny slips of paper money were treasure trove in a letter from uncle. The Canadian 25-cent bill may have been a nuisance to bank clerks who had them to account for them, bundle them up and otherwise play marmalade to them. But they were a convenience to many who wished to send 25 or 50 cents through the mail and did not wish to be bothered with money orders or postal notes. Certainly children loved them. Listen to the lament of the Ottawa newspaper, Le Droit:

"They were liked, those handy little slips; they were liked by all those who have at the doors of their hearts little strings of little gifts and of nephews, and particularly of adorable grandchildren. When grandfather felt his pen shaking too much a little 25-cent bill slipped into an envelope played a diplomatic role of great importance. Uncles and godfathers, aunts and godmothers used them, too; they sent happiness with much cost under the smiling portraits of the Gracious Majesties reigning over the United Kingdom and the Dominions beyond the seas. The shin-plaster, so called because it was about the size of the plaster that once was a common household remedy, has been seen less frequently in recent years. Perhaps the Bank of Canada felt it was only speeding a departing guest when it 'called in' these unique little money tokens—Edmonton Journal."

"Was there any shade in the desert?"

"Yes, but I couldn't get it in."

"Why not?"

"Have you ever tried to sit in your own shadow?"

"I've read it," said Ernest.

"There you are, then," said the earl. "Another-Bingley rides to the rescue, what?"

"Your lordship," said Ernest, "you are man of a terrible mistake."

"Shouldn't wonder," said the earl. "Often do. What have I done now?"

"About me, I mean," said Ernest. He spoke slowly, painfully, as if each

In Defence Of Advertising

One Of The Greatest Educational Forces In Our Modern Civilization

When I see people criticizing the amount of advertising in their newspapers and magazines—or over their radio—I almost strike me as a completely selfish attitude. What matters is not the amount of advertising, but the quality of the advertising. I am not a fan of advertising, but I am a fan of the service it gives to the public. What would it be like if we lived in a world without advertising? How would we learn of new products—new services available to us—new discoveries? Our whole interest in life would quickly shrink, until we were a living in a small, restricted community without those essential contacts with the outside world. The living in a small, restricted community without those essential contacts with the outside world. Skating Stars From Canada

Young Daughters Of B.C. Clergyman Have Skated Before Queen

It's a far cry from the frozen surface of a British Columbia lake to the spotlight of Covent Garden Opera House, London, but that's what Lovett and Joy McKinnon have accomplished in a few short years.

Daughters of a British Columbia clergyman, the young girls are skating stars extraordinary, and are at present on an expedition tour of Great Britain. They had the honor recently of skating before Queen Elizabeth and the ice ballet in which they appear has been visited by other members of the British royal family, and by the King and Queen of Bulgaria.

Both sisters were born in Vancouver, and attended Kitsilano high school there. They were admitted to school when they were engaged for the Coronation Ice Revue at Brighton, England.

After joining the Coronation Ice Revue at Brighton the girls spent several months in skating exhibitions in all parts of England. Recently they were alerted along with some of Europe's greatest skaters in London. The sisters were entrusted with special acrobatic numbers in "Enchanted Night," and won enthusiastic applause by their perfect teamwork—Toronto Star Weekly.

A Valuable Food

But Doctors Have Changed Their Minds About Spinach

Spinach, since it is unpleasant and therefore regarded as nutritious, was long overrated as a food source of Vitamin A (good for eyes), Vitamin C (good against infectious diseases and scurvy), iron (good for blood) and calcium (good for bones). Hence it is sold fresh, frozen, sliced and canned, dried and powdered, and powdered and compressed into tablets. Discussion of its merits has gone so far that the American Medical Association's Council on Foods decided to rejudge this best studied of all edible leaves.

The Council on Foods reported its matured findings thus: "Spinach may be regarded as a rich source of Vitamin A and as a contributor of Vitamin C, iron and roughage to the diet. It is therefore a valuable food. (But) the iron is not well utilized by infants . . . (and) the feeding of spinach is of no value during early infancy as a source of calcium."

Limiting Auto Speeds

Important Aspect Of Highway Safety Problem

The chief trouble with automobile traffic these days is that the automotive engineer has gone too far ahead of the highway engineer—to say nothing of the average driver.

So says J. M. Gentry, an American safety campaigner, in a plea for a national agreement among automobile manufacturers to limit car speed to 70 miles an hour.

As things stand, Mr. Gentry points out, the average auto will go much faster than the average road can safely accommodate it, and also much faster than the average driver can safely guide it. A speed much above 60 miles an hour should be entrusted only to highly qualified motorists and confined to specially designed and built roads.

Whether such an agreement, he suggests, can ever be obtained is, perhaps, doubtful. But his proposal does touch on one of the most important aspects of the highway safety problem—Victoria Times.

Showed Great Endurance

After being buried in snow for 37 days four ewes were rescued in Shetland Forest near Cumberland, England. They speedily recovered and may be honored for holding the sheep endurance record for being in snow and surviving. They are owned by Lord Leonfield.

2-WAY RELIEF FOR THE MISERY OF COLDS

Take 2 "ASPIRIN" tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

If throat is sore from the cold, crush and stir 3 "ASPIRIN" tablets in 1/2 glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

No family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two "Aspirin" tablets when you feel a cold coming on—with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly. The "Aspirin" method of relieving colds is the way many doctors approve. You take "Aspirin" for relief—then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor. "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Little Helps For This Week

Hast Thou not known? Has thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, faitheth not nor is weary? Isaiah 40:28.

The mystery of the Infinite is one which through all the ages we shall only be able to read a line of here and there. We already know that the name of the Infinite is God. We are as soldiers fighting in a foreign land that understand not the plan of campaign, and have no need to understand it, seeing well what is at our hand to be done. Let us do it with submission, with courage and with a heroic joy. Behind each one of us lie six thousand years of human effort, human conquest; before us is the boundless Time which has opportunities yet unconquered, and which we have to create and conquer with the help of God.

How Prices Are Fixed

If Serecy Desired Finger Code Is Used Under Cover

Among at least three quarters of the people of the world, goods bought and sold seldom have a fixed value. The price paid is determined only after negotiations between buyer and seller. When the parties wish to keep the price a secret, the negotiations are carried on in a finger code under cover. Prices for rugs in Persia and rubies in Burma are settled by the two men squeezing each other's hands beneath a table or a piece of cloth—Colliers.

G Aitken returned to the "Curling Circle" in time to stop that fast stepping rink of F. Morrell, the final score being 9-8.

On the same program for the evening W. S. Lee trimmed C. W. Rideout 10-5. This put the two winners in the furs of the funnies.

The following evening W. Todd and Len Cooley advanced to the furs they defeated W. Gallagher.

On Friday E. Robinson failed in his second attempt to take the cup from F. Morrell who was on the long end of a 11-4 score.

Saturday night saw W. Todd and Len Cooley reach the finals of the funnies draw with convincing wins of 13-5 and 14-4 over their opponents, G. Aitken and W. S. Lee.

That seemingly "hoodoo" rink of F. Morrell again successfully defended the cup against J. Gallagher, the score being 9-5.

The second draw of the Funnies will get under way soon and some great games are expected.

Medicine Hat, (Special)—A rather unusual case of infantile paralysis is reported to the local health office this morning. A ten-year-old girl was brought into Medicine Hat for treatment from a district north of Irvine. She is under the care of Dr. D. N. MacCharles.

The unusual aspect of the case is that the disease rarely during the winter months. Doctors are of the opinion that cold weather tends to decrease the possibility of any person contracting a case. This brings the total to 86 since the epidemic started last August, as there were no cases reported during December, local physicians believed that it was finished. Dr. MacCharles stated that the girl only had a mild form of the disease, although one leg was partially paralyzed.
